Mallory Lewis is doing her mother's work. She's the daughter of Shari Lewis, who, with puppet Lamb Chop, entertained baby boomers and beyond (Shari died in 1998). Mallory performs with Lamb Chop but also pursues her own interest in childhood education. With a series of DVDs now in stores, Phonics 4 Babies, she hopes to give today's children a running start at learning language. "Mom specialized in educating toddlers," Lewis says. She is aiming at babies because early language development is critical now.
